CEPP Agenda October 6, 2010 213 Library 8:309:30 a.m.

In attendance Logan Brenner, Rochelle Calhoun, Terry Diggory, Mimi Hellman, Chris Kopec, Josh Ness, Bob Turner, Ann Henderson, and Anita Harris

I. Accepting orline classes from other institutions Ann Henderson and Anita Harris

CEPP conducted a discussion of whether we should change our current policy thiate: Oistance learning courses ... cannot earn transfer credit agreed that the issue has become timely for a number of reasons.

x Skidmorestudents may taken-line Skidmorecoursesoffered through a long running pilot program in the Office of the Dean of Special Programtse summer ($\sums2 126$ Love in Art and Idea, BI 110 Biology of the Mind, BU 338 Foundations of Finance, MU 306 History of Jazz in America, and MS 104 Introduction to Statistic<23 dU)-While the course description whether the course was offered on se was offered into the Registra would not

s and 93% of doctoral institutions are offeridigenas urs(Assabasz, Boggs, & Baker, 2007) rise of hybrid or ught partly in the classroom and partly onlimake it ween what constitutes an on-line classor not.

Instructions that a number of schools on process including Bates, Connecticut College, Frankling to Lawrence, and Wesleyan.

Instruction of the summer and would finiting and courses a useful way is focus on the mode of delive measurements focus on their relative educational quality or should an elivery. Many classroom courses may be taught by int interaction, or be very large classes taught

II. FEG Division of the Disciplines discussion at Faculty Meeting CEPP discussed the Division of Disciplines discussion from Friday's faculty meeting. Currently, there are three division of the disciplines: 1. for meetingth DOF to identify opportunities for collaborations; 2. For faculty governance; and 3 for breadth requirements in the curriculum, although this is at the course