LIBERAL STUDIES 1: HUMAN DILEMMAS FALL 2003

COURSE OBJECTIVES

To examine what it means to be human from biological, social, and aesthetic perspectives

To learn and practice critical thinking

- o recognizing choices
- o examining assumptions
- o taking a skeptical stance

To learn to identify and formulate questions that will produce knowledge To learn to explore a question from a variety of perspectives

- o disciplinary
- o interdisciplinary
- o cross-cultural

To gain an appreciation for ambiguity and complexity

- To develop the habit of mind of making connections among ideas
- To commit to action beyond the recognition of ambiguity

To create a community of le